Risk Management Services

Risk management is so much more than just a bolt-on service. It's specifically designed around businesses to save money, trauma and reputation – it's a foundation piece to a legal requirement for any business.

We recognise that no two businesses are alike. Our risk management team provide a bespoke service tailored to a business's specific need – from specialist impartial advice on health and safety best practice to regulatory compliance.

WHY RISK MANAGEMENT MATTERS?

The legal obligations

All employers are legally obliged to ensure the welfare of employees under the Health and Safety at Work Act (1974) and Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations (1999).

The financial implications

Non-compliance with health and safety laws can have serious financial implications, including staff absences, costs of downtime and loss of resources. In more serious cases this may include prosecution, a damaged reputation and increased insurance costs.

The moral responsibility

Every business has a duty of care to their staff, customers, contractors and visitors. It is the responsibility of the business to provide a safe environment for employees and customers, and a legal obligation to take steps to minimise the risk of harm.

The risk to businesses at a glance

- Increased accidents
- Increased running costs
- Increased insurance costs
- Increased employee absence and turnover rates
- Increased downtime, decreased productivity
- Legal action and associated costs
- Reputational damage amongst suppliers, partners and customers
- Potential fines
- Potential prosecution
- Potential loss of income
